Poet-Paster is Expelled. Rev. James B. Kenyon, poet and doctor of literature, late pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Bradford, Pa., and a well-known minister of the the Methodist Episcopal Church, was, in a sense, expelled last Thursday from the Genesce conference of the church, though the resolutions adopted make him appear as having "withdrawn under complaint of immorality" with a desconess, to which he partially contess-Kenyon is 48 yeras old, married and has a family of grown-up children.
Kenyon has published several volumes of verse. These are some of the titles:
"The Fallen and Other Poems", Loitering in Old Fields," Remembered Days," "Retribution." He has also contributed poems to magazines and art-

Whipped at the Altar. Charles F. Schmittler exercised his prerogative as husband at the altar at Carmi, Ill., on Friday, and whipped his wife as soon as the justice had pronounced the words which made them one. The bride was Mrs. Josie Haggerty, of Princetown, Ind. They conducted their courtship mail, and she came on to have the ceremony performed. Justice Alfred Pennel was reading the service when the bride jerked the book from his hand tothe floor. When the ceremony had been reformed and the institute of the service when the constant of the service when the ceremony had been reformed and the institute of the service when the ceremony had been reformed and the institute of the service when the ceremony had been reformed and the institute of the service when the serv ced the words which made them one. been performed and the justice offered the certificate for them to sign, she knocked the ink bottle over on the document. Justice Pennel looked up in amazement, and she threw some of the ink down his coat sleeve. He then fled, and the husband began to flog his bride.

Snake Coils Around Her Leg.

Sitting on her porch at Ebensburg, Pa., Saturday, Mrs. Charles Port felt omething tighten around her left ankle. Reaching down, she was horrified to find a snake three feet long coiled about her a snake three feet long colled about her shoe. With a cry of terror she fled into the house, trying to kick the snake off, but without success. The reptile only tightened its hold. Miles Davis, em-ployed in a near-by store, heard the woman's shrieks and ran to her assistance, killing the snake with a shovel.
